1998:

- Don't get into strangers' cars
- Don't meet people from the internet

2017:

- Literally summon strangers from the internet to get into their car

Doctors: Googling stuff online does not make you a doctor.

Programmers:

A QA engineer walks into a bar.
Orders a beer. Orders 0 beers.
Orders 9999999999999999 beers.
Orders a lizard. Orders -1 beers.
Orders a ueicbksjdhd.

First real customer walks in and asks where the bathroom
is. The bar bursts into flames, killing everyone.

Dear web developers,
The answer is zero. Zero. Get it through your thick skulls. Zero is the number of times anyone has EVER wanted something to autoplay on your site and start making noise. I'd honestly rather you mine crypto-currency in my browser than use my speakers.

Client did not pay?

Add opacity to the body tag and increase it every day until their site completely fades away. Set a due date and customize the number of days you offer them until the website is fully vanished.

/* change these variables as you wish */ var due_date = new
Date('2017-02-27');
    var days_deadline = 60;
/* stop changing here */
```

Usage

Just load the .js file in `<head>`

Flight attendant: Is there a doctor on this flight?

Dad: *nudging me* that should've been you

Me: Not now Dad

Dad: Not asking for a CSS developer to help, are they?

Me: Dad, there's a medical emergency happening right now

Dad: Go and see if "display: grid;" helps

Almost made fun of an electrician today like "is it an electrician's guild rule that you have to perform 5 minutes of ritual complaining about What Was The Previous Electrician Thinking before you're allowed to fix anything?" but then I remembered I'm a software engineer

Remark. A picture like this is called a tree. (This is not a formal definition; that will follow later.) If you want to know why the tree is growing upside down, ask the computer scientists who introduced this convention. (The conventional wisdom is that they never went out of the room, and so they never saw a real tree.)

That is understandable. I don't think I would be comfortable telling my family that I develop PHP either.

I saw a software engineer today

No company swag hoodie.
No stickers on their laptop.
No mechanical keyboard.

He just sat there.
Typing away on our default IDE.
Like a psychopath.

Why programmers like cooking: You peel the carrot, you chop the carrot, you put the carrot in the stew. You don't suddenly find out that your peeler is several versions behind and they dropped support for carrots in 4.3
